★ Salvation & the ★ American dream

It is known but unused that the cycle of decay & life is unending. But that doesn't mean it looks the same.

I can try using the most flowery language to give the average flower shop a run for their money.
What I'll say isn't brand new, but it is my observation.
It may sound like shit, but it's mine.

The American dream is like a zombie, kept alive for the curiosity of others when it should have died long ago.
It is reanimated so many times over again that it becomes a bastard of itself slowly less born.

then what it really was. All that father's dream was,
was the human being
got something better.
But year after year it
was kept alive by
the obscenely rich as a way to keep people

lulled into the sense
that there exhibition
isn't in vain.

★ People aren't with ★
they know they are in a cruel machine
like meat at cancer factory. But it feels hopeless so what is else in you do?

It's isolating too.
The "golden age"
that a family is seen
as almost is lost
less as people who care about each other rather as family

the "perfect child" mostly on their terms. Even then, while we made to soon expected, it is really isolating.
I never had the full nuclear family but I've been with family members who going to that feel I missed the Italian for dear love. It feels like having eyes constantly turning into the fear of being rejected.

Closest thing to family.

that the police are trying to tell about being in a psychiatric that people would immediately think you're a killer.

★ You get sick of lying
when you have a psych background you have to be careful. It's too much work to help a lot to stay quiet when there's the confidence of an

Al is the only connection no matter how many people are left behind, how many natural resources are used without making it or how much harm it will do to everyone. Because why care when there's to do or why bother? When a life-saving machine or technology is used to control hunger can it be for you when I'm talking about it with some of my family it gets brushed off as with those that agree that Al is bad they don't listen to why it's bad. It's like the sterile unmoving walls of a prison where I'm expected to be a happy, normal person. Because you could always be sent back to that cold isolation. This isn't limited to the physical. There's a mental state of affairs where it could be any thing. The life, the pain, the death? I want to understand myself. I want to know who I am. I want my I want by writing this because of the fear they will brush off as silly. I want for a longer for miles. I want Or maybe they will just see it as only the words of a silly, gay, lonely, or stupid girl about her frustration.
I want the people who called me I want them to again.

So Fuck it all. It's like a lie as the first I'll be

There are things that keep me up at night like my college & many mistakes from many years ago. But I think of those things I put someplace if I can be a part in the air creating the peace and as a celebration.

Sometimes late at night when I focus on that empty mind you could almost hear the voice of static say your name.
Not just your name but your feelings. It sounds painful now I write it but I don't of that & other messages a lot.

As messages you think of I mean
help give that make it feel a little less alone.
